CUSTOMS

New Delhi, the 21st September 1963

G.S.R. 1500.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Customs Act, 1962, (52 of 1962), the Central Government being satisfied that, for the protection of national treasures of artistic, historic or archaeological and scientific value, it is necessary so to do, hereby prohibits the export of Holotypes, or their equivalents (such as Cotypes, Syntypes, Lectotypes and Neotypes) of any species of plants or animals, whether dead or alive or in fossil state, or any part thereof except under and in accordance with the terms and conditions of a permit issued in each case of export by:—

- (1) the Director, Botanical Survey of India, Calcutta or any person especially empowered by him in this behalf, in the case of plants; or,
- (2) the Director, Zoological Survey of India, Calcutta, or any person especially empowered by him in this behalf, in the case of animals; or,
- (3) the Director, Geological Survey of India, Calcutta or any person especially empowered by him in this behalf, in the case of fossils.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this notification—

- (a) Holotype (or simply “Type”) means the single specimen designated or indicated as such by the original author at the time of publication of the original description or the only specimen known at the time and on which the original description is based.
- (b) Syntypes (Cotypes) means one or several specimens on which an author bases an original description when no single specimen is designated as the holotype, or specimens in a type series in which no holotype has been designated.
- (c) Lectotype means one of the series of syntypes (or cotypes) which is selected subsequent to the original description, and thenceforth serves as the definitive type of the species. In order to be effective, such selection may be made known through a publication.
- (d) Neotype means a specimen selected as type, subsequent to original description, in case where the primary types are definitely known to be destroyed. Here also the selection is to be made known through publication.
